
Introduction to UArctic

University of the Arctic \(UArctic\) is a network of universities, colleges, research institutes, and other organizations concerned with education and research in and about the North.

Student Mobility Details

To be a north2north student, you must:

- Be registered as a student at a University of the Arctic \(UArctic\) institution participating in the north2north program
- Have completed your first year of study and passed all your exams

Different national funding programs finance the north2north mobility. Detailed information can be found here: UArctic – University of the Arctic – Funding Possibilities by Country. Note: you can go on an exchange with or without applying for funding. Funding criteria and exchange criteria differ.

The north2north coordinator, or in the case of Canada a Steering Committee, is responsible for the selection of applicants for north2north grants and tuition waivers by the deadline. Students who participate in the north2north program from the United States, United Kingdom, Canada, and Australia require tuition waivers. Please contact your institution's coordinator for how you can apply.

The north2north coordinator can use some of the following aspects for the student selection:

- Participation in University of the Arctic Programs: priority will be given to students enrolled in study programs that are endorsed by UArctic or activities connected to the Thematic Networks at both undergraduate and graduate levels provided that they meet the eligibility requirements.
- Non-Traditional Exchange Participants: students and institutions normally marginalized by lack of resources or geographical isolation, students from small communities, remote learners, students with families, and/or from indigenous cultures and communities who are traditionally under-represented are prioritized.
- Students who demonstrate a motivation to contribute to the North.

Diverse criteria is taken into consideration when evaluating the motivation letter:

- The student's study program
- The student's past/future professional and/or academic plans
- The student's commitment to contribute to the Northern region or community.
- Description of social and educational background and your connection to the North.
